Five-year Panhandling

TODAY the Senate Unemployment Committee reports to the upper chamber of Congress that the cost of "relief" to the federal government from 1933 through 1937 was 19 billion 300 million dollars.

That one item alone for the five years Mr. Roosevelt has been in the presidency approximately equals the entire federal debt at the time he took office.

One of two things is by this time certain: Either our country is so bad off that it can not operate under the democratic government of our forefathers, or else Mr. Roosevelt is deliberately preying on our fears, imagining a continued "emergency" as an excuse for additional huge grants of federal bounty which lie at the base of every politician's popularity.

But a country that in five years has doubled its national debt for the sake of "relief" must begin to think that its own future is more important than the social ideas of one man or the political hopes of one party.

The backwash from Mr. Roosevelt's original "recovery" program is such today that it is imperative that the Democratic leaders in Congress head off the president and salvage the party's chances in 1940.

The United States alone of all the self-governing nations on earth remains today with a liberal-radical government. It would be a catastrophe for the liberal-believing citizen should the Democratic party so commit itself in the next few months to the disastrous radical policies of the immediate past that 1940 would see a tidal wave of reaction engulf the government.

It is difficult to reason with the president. He is a skillful debater but the most skillful debater on earth will smash any party in the United States if he fails to convince the country that his policies in the long run are intelligible and business-like which Mr. Roosevelt's policies are not.

French Delay Domestic Discussions, Discuss Foreign Trade

PARIS, France. —(P)—Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet Wednesday presented to the cabinet an outline of his plans for strengthening France's international position, which authoritative quarters believe include an effort for closer collaboration between Paris, Washington and London.

Washington's policies were understood to include plans to seek United States economic aid for France.

Seek U. S. Alliance

PARIS, France. —(P)—Premier Edouard Daladier dropped work on his internal decree laws Tuesday to concentrate the cabinet's attention on foreign affairs, including, informed quarters said, the idea of seeking closer ties among the United States, Great Britain and France. Officials were silent about the report that he and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet were going to London April 28 to confer with the British about the possibility of opening conversations with Washington.

The Van Zeeland report, some quarters said, was the vehicle by which the French and the British hoped to win American economic co-operation. This report made last January by former Premier Paul Van Zeeland of

Council Plan Hits Negro Beer Places Outside Fire Line

Proposed Ordinance to Eliminate Sale of Beer

PROTEST IS HEARD

Negro Civic Group in the Second Appeal for Protection

The city council Tuesday night adopted a motion of Alderman K. G. Hamilton to draw up an ordinance eliminating the sale of beer outside the fire limits of Hope.

Action of the council followed the reading of a letter by Alderman L. A. Keith from the negro civic council protesting the operation of beer joints in certain sections of town.

The letter urged the city administration to give protection to residents living near beer joints.

The letter from the negro civic group was the second appeal to the city government for relief. Several weeks ago representatives of the negro group appeared before the council personally.

At that time they protested that the beer joints kept late hours at night, operated mechanical music boxes, and in general created much disturbance. Several fights also were reported.

Acting Police Chief Clarence Baker told the council that negro beer joints had caused him much trouble in the past and told of several arrests that were made late at night or during the early morning hours.

Other business with the council: J. V. Moore submitted eight signed contracts asking the city to establish an electric light line from Schooley's store to a point two miles north on the DeAnn road. The contracts were turned over to the water and light committee for further action.

Lloyd Corp. appeared before the council and asked for an appropriation of $250 to rebuild the grand stand and to repair the fence around the Fair Park baseball grounds.

Coop suggested that a PWA project to furnish labor could be obtained and that the work could be done without much expense at this time.

A committee was appointed to confer with the Fair Park commissioners and then report back at the next meeting.

Hempstead county pine will play a part in the erection of the World's Fair grounds in New York city.

The last of a shipment of flag poles, manufactured by the Bruner-Ivory handle company of Hope, was scheduled to leave the local plant Wednesday.

The order called for 500 flag poles, all but 120 having been shipped.

The flag poles are 16 feet long and measure 1 1/2 inches in diameter.

Nashville Officials Banqueted by Firemen

NASHVILLE, Ark. —The Nashville Fire Department honored the incoming and outgoing city officials with a banquet at the Coca Cola Bottling plant here Monday night, following a meeting for the reorganization of the Chamber of Commerce. Those in attendance were treated to a delightful evening in both refreshments and entertainment.

After dinner, with Fire Chief Allie McMillan serving in the capacity of toastmaster, enjoyable talks were rendered by former Mayor C. F. Hill, City Attorney J. S. McConnell, Aldermen V. F. McCauley, C. C. Propps, Martin Nowell and Fred Murphy.

County Judge Alger Merrell, Fred Ball, former city marshal, City Recorder Mose Floyd, H. B. Corruith, superintendent of the Municipal Water Works, R. M. Stuart, member of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, Mayor C. G. Hughes, J. P. Dunklin, agent Sinclair Refining Co., Joe Dowley, manager Southern Ice Co., Dr. J. S. Scuggin, F. W. The reinforced Japanese armies defeated the Chinese in two battles along the south Shantung front Wednesday while the insurgent forces of Generalissimo Franco made further advances in the northeastern war zone of Spain.

The Japanese victories—their first in weeks—marked the opening of an offensive designed to avenge the series of setbacks at the hands of the Chinese around Tai-chi-chang.

In Spain, the insurgents, held up by the flooded Ebro river and a stubborn government resistance in their campaign against Tortosa, swung their offensive abruptly southward along the Mediterranean coast toward Valencia and Castellon.

In Rome, French and Italian diplomats arranged to start negotiations Thursday for an agreement like that Italy and Britain signed last week.

WASHINGTON —(P)—President Roosevelt discussed with his fiscal advisors Wednesday how private utilities could be helped to finance new construction and provide jobs.

Earlier, Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, indicated in testimony at the capitol he was preparing to increase the relief load during the first seven months of the next fiscal year, beginning July 1.

Giving an idea of the extent of relief expenditures, the senate unemployment committee reported Wednesday that from 1933 to 1937 a total of 19 billion 300 million dollars had been spent for this purpose.

In its report to the senate the committee said enactment of flat-rate taxes on corporation incomes and capital would be "exceedingly helpful" in creating employment for the 12 million or more now idle.

The Perpetual Hour

A NEW word ought to be invented. Somebody ought to think up a good, realistic word that would mean peace, but not the state of affairs that has been going by that label for so many generations now. Rather, a word to describe a condition that has a genuinely peaceful quality as part of its fundamental nature, and a suggestion of some permanence.

There might be a use for a word like that sometime. You never can tell.

Paul C. Smith, San Francisco editor who toured Europe recently with Herbert Hoover, writes that there will be no new war, that the question is simply how long it will take for the old World War to return to the trenches. The language is good, but it might have trained its sights on a little further object.

LANGUAGE of the same kind might have been used before 1914. Smith emphasizes that no country wants war today. Every participant in the World War, just before participation became a fact, declared that war was not the world's first war. The question before 1914 was not when the new war would begin, but how long it would be before the old wars returned to the trenches.

Afterwards, there was no new peace. The world returned to that old peace that has made its name meaningless, that delusion of every war's making that is merely a hysterical truce whose new conditions force upon it the seeds of its own destruction.

THIS present war-without-trenches can scarcely be blamed wholly on the World War. The deeper cause is to be found in those primitive concepts of international relations which make every "peace" simply a little soft music before the curtain goes up on the next murderous act.

During the next war-in-the-trenches men will be wondering, with reasonable fear, how long it will take that comparatively brief period of active warfare to resolve itself into the perilous stalemate we now have.

That is, if there are any men left to do the wondering.

Surprise Packages

WHO said the powers that be haven't the interests of the common man at heart?

The Federal Trade Commission has ruled that the plots of motion pictures bearing book titles must henceforth look like the plots of the books from which the titles were taken.

Things are getting more and more wonderful all the time, before you know it; there'll be a ruling that you can't disguise a movie version of a good book on international spy-rings by making up a title like "Six Savage Gieolos," or "Arctic Rapture." The titles would give away the nature of the movies then, of course, but if it hurt too awful Hollywood could confine its adaptation work to the books whose titles don't mean anything anyway.

Which raises the point that the Federal Trade Commission could do some good work in the book field, too. Maybe the movies got that trick-title habit from the publishers. More than one man has bought a book with an adventurous-sounding title and then found that it was a book about an adventurous old lady.

From the publishing field the commission could proceed to the salad-naming field, and then to the perfume-naming field, and . . . Oh, it's wonderful to think of all the good work that's left for the young men now coming up!

If Abdominal Pain Sharp, Give No Cathartic.

For years medical schools have emphasized to their students, teachers have emphasized to practicing doctors, articles in newspapers, in magazines and over the radio have proclaimed the warning: Never prescribe a cathartic when there is acute abdominal pain.

The results have begun to show themselves in a lessened number of cases of people with a ruptured appendix now being brought to the hospitals. This is particularly true where enough emphasis has been put on the campaign to get the information widely disseminated among the people.

In the records recently studied in a large hospital for children in Chicago, it was found that 40 per cent of children brought to the hospital with the appendix already ruptured were children whose parents believed that all stomachache was due to something that the child had eaten and who treated the condition by giving a strong cathartic medicine.

Twenty-seven children had a rupture of the appendix less than twenty-four hours after their first symptom. These represent the kind of patient who could probably be operated on safely and without very much chance of a serious result if they had not been given a cathartic before there was a real diagnosis of what was wrong.

The figures seem to show that few children have appendicitis in the first or second year of life. However, the first four years of life show a high record of ruptured appendices because a child is unable to indicate its symptoms accurately. For that very reason the disease is most deadly during the first four years of life.

The doctor diagnoses the presence of appendicitis by the nature of the

The Men Behind the Barons—Who Helped Whom Make the Money

Well, How's the Stock Market Doing?

ion volume, "The Politicos" (Harcourt, Brace, $4.50), an equally stimulating and informative book about the statesmen through whose agency the barons operated.

The industrialists, he points out, were men who acted and said nothing; the politicians he describes as men who did little or nothing and said a great deal. They fronted for the noiseless big shots and were the instruments (says Mr. Josephson) through which the Rockefeller, Goulds, Morgans, Carnegies, et al., were able to bend the nation to their will.

The Civil War, he asserts, was a revolution in which growing capitalism burst the hampering bonds of a simpler economy. The 30-odd years after the war, as he sees them, were the time in which revolutionary capitalism solidified its position on the ground that had been won.

In this job, he continues, capital had to take over the two-party political system. The parties had evolved as instruments whereby democracy could circumvent the barriers erected by the aristocratic founding fathers; capturing them, says Mr. Josephson, emerging capitalism captured everything.

His book is largely a story of how the capture was effected and what it led to. It is an iconoclastic story, and profoundly disturbing; you may find some of your pet heroes roughly dealt with. But in the end it will give you some interesting and significant information about your country's history.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JOYCE MILNER, heroine, she took an Easter Cruise.
DICK HAMILTON, hero; he bumped into the heroine.
ISOBEL PORTER, traveler; she caught a mate.

Yesterday, Dick and Isobel came aboard and Isobel announced their engagement! Joyce is stunned!

CHAPTER XIII

NEITHER the Porters nor Dick were at the doctor's table for dinner that evening. Mrs. Porter had speedily arranged a very special dinner in one of the ship's private dining rooms. If there were any doubt about the engagement, if there were any dull apprehension in her mind that its consummation in a Havana cafe might not be adequately formal, she was promptly correcting the situation. Joyce could imagine the thrill of triumph which would glorify the occasion.

She steered herself to be exceptionally gay. She talked on, frivolously and lightly, about the price of perfumes in the Arcade, about the young man who had been ice-skating in Central Park only yesterday, about the flavor of the soup and the fragrance of the coffee. If anybody thought she cared about their engagement—well!

They talked at length of Haiti, and Joyce expressed her eagerness to visit this island so weirdly presented through the pages of mystery books and movie thrillers.

"Tell you what," Dr. Gray suggested as they ordered dessert. "I'll have the steward serve our coffee down in my cabin, and I'll ask the chief officer to join us. He can tell you some hair-raising stories."

So the three of them left the dining room, together, and a few minutes later Mr. Jones, the chief officer, joined them in the doctor's cabin.

Mr. Jones told them many tall, tremendous stories of voodoo worship and magic, all of which he attested to be actual, personal experiences, and none of which his listeners believed. They were amusing tales, nevertheless, and Joyce enjoyed every breathless moment of suspense, for the chief officer was a natural story teller.

young bodies shot through the water after the illusive coins.

There was a knock on her door, and she turned to see Mr. Gregory on the threshold.

"I have a disappointment for you," he announced in gloomy reply to her greeting.

"What is it?"

"Dr. Gray cannot go ashore with us. He has an emergency operation; one of the crew has come down with appendicitis."

Joyce's face fell.

"However, if you would care to come ashore with me," he went on, "the doctor has given me an outline of what to do and where to go."

"I'd be delighted," she said, forcing a smile. She wouldn't be delighted at all; Mr. Gregory was a dull companion. However, there would be no pleasure in going off herself, a lone sheep, without purpose or direction.

THEY went ashore in the first small launch. Just beyond the wharf, a veritable army of chauffeurs offered their services. Mr. Gregory called the name of the chauffeur whom the doctor had recommended; instantly seven eager natives responded.

"What will we do?" he wondered, looking at the seven black faces.

She laughed. "It must be a name like John Smith," she said. "Easily duplicated."

seeds, dyed every color of the spectrum.

In the central square of the city they left the car for a few minutes to look about the government buildings, to view at close range the various monuments to the heroes of the republic. The mute figures told their story dramatically; looking up at them the faces seemed to roll back for one fleeting instant, and again that tumultuous undercurrent of a long-ago struggle for freedom surged in one's blood.

AS they walked back to the car, Joyce a little thoughtfully, she was startled out of her day-dreams by the pitter-patter of bare feet behind her. A little girl came up, holding out something in her hand and explaining volubly in unintelligible phrases.

"Why, it's my bracelet!" Joyce exclaimed, taking the offering. "I must have dropped it. Thank you, my dear. Merci, I mean, merci," she corrected in French.

The child's eyes were wide as saucers as they stared in enraptured admiration at the trinket. It was an inexpensive novelty bracelet in gold lacquer, with several bangles hanging from it. But to her it might have been the Koh-i-noor.

"I'd never have missed it," Joyce said, grateful for the child's honesty. Then, impulsively, she held it out. "Would you like it?" she asked with a smile.

At first the girl drew back, but Joyce took her thin arm, wound the bracelet around it twice, then snapped the link. "Pour toi," she explained in her textbook French. The child's mouth opened in a smile that lighted her entire black face. She stared, unbelieving, at the golden links of beauty around her wrist. Then, impetuously, she bent and kissed Joyce's hand.

"Merci, mam'selle!" she cried. "Merci, merci!"

Mr. Gregory admonished. "She'll lose it or throw it away in a few moments." Joyce shook her head. "You don't understand the female mind, Mr. Gregory. Why, when I was her age, I'd have given my right arm for a bangle bracelet."

Later that afternoon, Mr. Gregory was to remember the incident. Very much later, when the shadows of darkness were enfolding the mystical island and the drums were beginning to beat their tom-tom through the forest. When from a mountainside five miles out of Port-au-Prince they heard the last whistle of the Empress, Mr. Gregory was to remember the importance of a silly bangle bracelet.

An Unthinking Meanness Can Be Bitterly Cruel—Child Suffers When Idol Reveals Feet of Clay

(No. 69)
One time I saw a spirit die. It was in a hotel, and the little boy had come in with his mother and father for lunch.

He was tired and restless and he was being reminded of his manners every second. Finally he knocked over his water glass.

His father reached out and in some way hurt the child's hand. He had seemed like such a good father, and I expect he was in his way. But I saw the little fellow gasp, lean over in agony and start to say, "Oh, you hurt—" then nothing more. He glanced into space with a look that wrung my heart horribly. It was startled, like the eyes of a fawn that has just enough time to feel the arrow in its heart before it drops. Then down went the boy's head on the table and slow tears welled and fell.

His hand did not hurt particularly. It was just that an otherwise good parent had shown his son the latest cruelty in him. Never again would the little fellow dress his daddy in the godlike qualities he had imagined before.

Little children of four or five, despite their apparent stoicism, are more sensitive about their parents' actions than we think possible. They pride themselves on their partnership. A break in faith is ruinous.

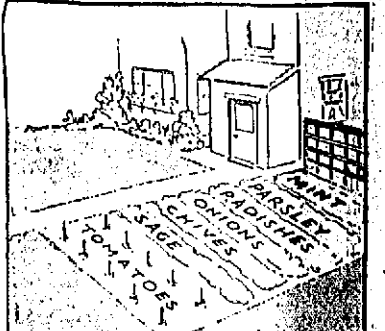

The promise which is so easily given, for instance, is taken as gospel by the child. A broken promise is a blow and the injury lies in the shattered faith of the child.

Weigh promises, good mother, and urge your husband to weigh his. Keep the promise, unless there is some extraordinarily good reason for breaking it.

What we should try to do at this tender age is to hold fast to the trust of our children. When some unexpected or uncalculated meanness shows up in our dispositions they may, thereafter, question our fitness to judge their mistakes. Our small boys and girls learn their ethics from us. An ideal lost is often a character lost.

He Borrowed and Went Returned and Paid

WEST POINT, Neb.—(AP)—A ragged, unkempt man talked William Green, barber, into giving him a free shave a year and a half ago. He said he would return some day and pay the debt. Green merely smiled and nodded. The man borrowed 50 cents from another West Point man and disappeared.

He came back the other day, well dressed, clean-shaven and prosperous looking. He paid Green for the shave and returned the 50 cents.

Jim Ogden and John Qualen as Pam (Dianne) Wyatt. The picture will show Moosetown (Colander) basking in prosperity. Summerville will have a new jail, and Papa Wyatt will be doing a huge business in autographs and handshakes.

Romantic leads in the picture have not been named at this writing, although the girl likely will be Claire Trevor. Most of the Breslow-Patrick story happens in New York and revolves around radio. The man and girl are bitter rivals in the field of stunt broadcasting, and he ruthlessly appropriates her pet idea for a vox pop program.

The Fighting Gets Hot

In a movie theater she sees a newsreel of the Dionne Quints and gets a hunch for a Newsreel of the Air. It proves successful, when she isn't scooped or thwarted by the man's competitive broadcast.

He learns of her plans to put the Quints and other Moosetown personalities on the air, precedes her to the Canadian village and warns Constable Ogden of the coming of a character named Panama Pearl who may, he hints, be contemplating a job of kidnapping.

So the girl (Miss Trevor, probably) and her pal-assistant (Joan Davis, probably) are tossed in the poken when they arrive. Duke Lester, the man, is about to close a broadcasting deal with the babies' guardians when Doctor Luke is called to the jail to attend a prisoner. The resourceful Miss Davis has faked a fit.

Thus able to talk with Doctor Luke, the girls establish their identities and land the broadcasting contract. Later Duke Lester tries to dim her triumph by a hoax in which the successful birth of sextuplets is announced. Miss Trevor exposes it.

Soon, though, she overreaches herself in attempting to aid a deserving hospital for children by contracting to bring the Quints to New York for an appearance in Madison Square Garden. The children cannot be removed from the Province of Ontario. The heroine wriggles out of that one by bringing in the children by television, thus effecting for its inventor a sensational first public demonstration of a new television process.

That's about all. The authors aren't sure yet just how they're going to get Miss Trevor into the arms of Mr. Lester. In fact, they asked me to send them a carbon copy of this column so they won't forget the story as they told it to me. They have finished only the first part of the screen play.

Paul Harrison in Hollywood

The Quintuplets Will Sing in New Movie

HOLLYWOOD.—The Dionne Quintuplets have approved the story for their next picture, to be called "Five of a Kind." At least, they've approved of the authors of the story, and they like the song they'll warble in English for the screen.

Except for this ditty, titled "All Mixed Up," the youngsters won't have to do much in the way of acting. They need only be themselves and look cute for the oh's and ah's of the movie multitude. However, they'll be spotted in numerous sequences through the picture and will do a great deal more to justify their billing as stars.

The writing team of Lou Breslow and John Patrick went to Callander, Ontario, to meet the actresses and Doctor Dafoe, and to get an idea of what could be done with the Quints. Mostly they found out what couldn't be done, for the doctor's rule are still inflexible. One sequence they're sure of will show the children in cowgirl costumes staging a rodeo with the patient Doctor Luke (Jean Hersholt) as their horse.

Both writers are more enthusiastic about the little Dionnes than were some of the Hollywooders who previously tried to work with them. "It's silly to go up there and expect to find trained actors, like the ones in a Hollywood kids' dramatic school," Breslow said. "Because they have had to be so isolated, they're less exhibitionistic even than ordinary kids. You know they're not conscious of being watched by the crowds that go there to see them."

"But they're plenty bright, naturally and instinctively. That same isolation has retarded them in learning to talk because they don't have much chance to jabber imitatively with older kids. At that, though, they talk quite a lot now, in French, and they're being taught some English so they can sing for the picture."

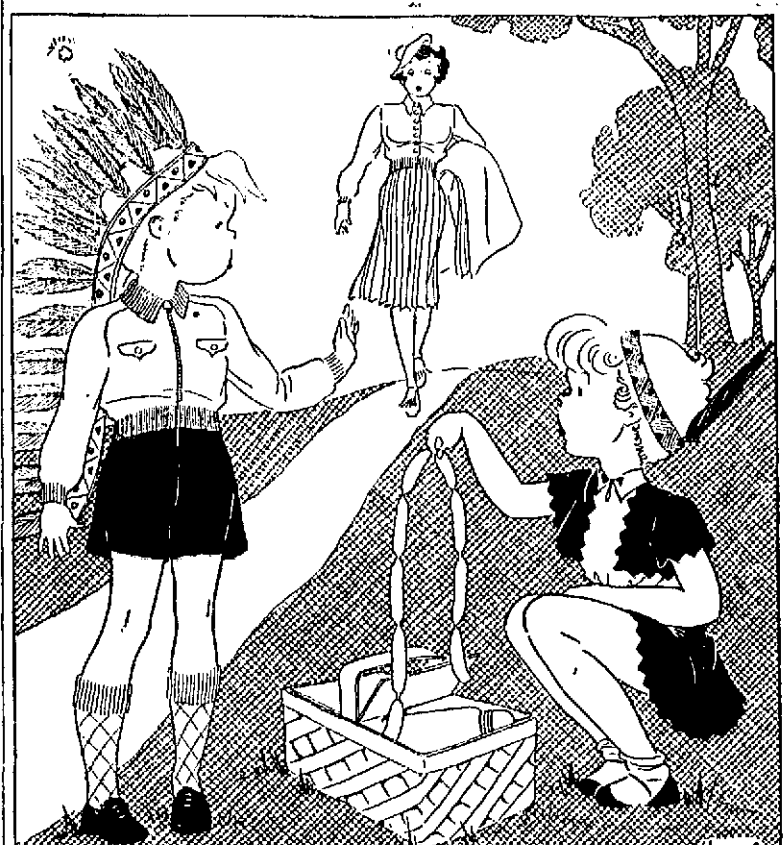

"Not many youngsters just turning 4 can say anything in two languages. They sing pretty well—French nursery stuff—and they're awful flirts."

Enter the Plot
The cast of "Five of a Kind" will include, besides the children and Hersholt, Slim Summerville as Constable

To April Babies

With heaven's blue deep in your eyes,
And April's gold in your hair,
You make us think you're worldly wise,
As you coo and gurgle there...
You gaze enraptured into space,
Though we cannot see a thing,
Surely the stirring in the curtain's lace
Is the swish of an angel's wing.
O, little dear, just six months old,
Do elves and fairies prance
Across the ceiling overhead when
You lie in a smiling trance?
Do the angels come at dusk
When the purple shadows creep,
And sit beside your little bed
While you sing yourself to sleep?
—Selected.

Circle No. 3 of the W. M. U. First Baptist church held its April meeting at the home of Mrs. John Turner, with Mrs. Johnny James as hostess, with the chairman, Mrs. S. L. Murphy presiding. A most helpful and instructive Bible study was given by Mrs. D. H. Lipscomb. Following the study, the hostesses served a tempting sandwich plate with tea to 12 members.

Mrs. R. M. LeGrone and Miss Maggie Bell were Tuesday visitors in Texarkana.

Friends will regret to learn of the passing of Mrs. Arthur Collins of Ashdown. Mrs. Collins passed on Wednesday morning, April 20th in a Texarkana hospital. She is the sister of Mr. J. W. Wimberly of this city, and has many friends who will remember her as Miss Daisy Wimberly, formerly of Hope.

The Clara Lovethorpe chapter C. of C. will hold its April meeting, Friday afternoon at 3:45 at the home of Miss Mary Ann Lile, with Misses Eudora Hatcher and Margaret Simms as associate hostesses.

Mrs. Jas. F. Brewer and two boys of Augusta, Ark., are house guests of Mrs. Brewer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Higginson.

Mrs. Burgher Jones and daughter, Lulah, have returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Calhoun in Conway and friends in Morrilton and Little Rock.

Attending a meeting of the Arkansas Medical Association in Texarkana on Tuesday and Wednesday night were Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Kohn, Dr. and Mrs. W. G. Allison, Dr. and Mrs. Jim McKinzie, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Branch, Dr. and Mrs. Don Smith, Dr. Geo. Cannon, Dr. L. M. Lile and Dr. and Mrs. Darnell of Fulton.

Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Branch have had as guests this week, Mrs. Branch's mother, Mrs. E. H. Wilkes of Little Rock and aunt, Mrs. Ross McCormick of Malvern.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Matthews have as house guests their daughters, Mrs. R. H. Bowen and son, John Woody, of Austin, Texas, and Miss Mary Matthews of Little Rock.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Robertson of Ozan announce the marriage of their daughter Ethel to Sam Carrigan, son of Mrs. Carrie Carrigan of Ozan. The wedding was solemnized on Monday evening, April 18th at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. Robertson, pastor of the Methodist church in Washington. The bride is now, and has been for the past four years connected with Mary's Beauty Shop in this city. Mr. Carrigan is connected with the Arkansas Highway Department.

The Hope Library again requests that all books be returned as soon as possible, as they must be assessed before issuing.

Second Meeting of Scout Group Held

Council Hears Miss Bonham in Lecture Tuesday Afternoon

Miss Eleanor Bonham, national field representative of girl scouts, told the scout council at city hall Tuesday afternoon that 500 girls of scout age were in the Hope area.

She said the purpose of the council was to sponsor and develop these girls intelligently, to maintain high standards by good leadership, to provide for training of leaders, to teach citizenship and to provide opportunities for camp and outdoor activities.

The benefits of girl scouting are great, Miss Bonham said at the second meeting of the council. Two other meetings of the council will follow, to be held Thursday and Friday afternoon at the city hall. All persons interested in girl scouting are urged to attend.

A demonstration of stick cooking by the girl scouts will be held at Fair Park this week.

to increase the number of authorized auxiliary vessels from 22 to 26.

The questions came from Senators Nye (Rep., N. D.), Vandenberg (Rep., Mich.), Borah (Rep., Ida.) and Lundeen (Farm-Labor, Minn.), who took the lead in demanding that Chairman Walsh (Dem., Mass.) of the senate naval affairs committee justify the legislation as a defense necessity and not a step toward "poling the world."

Contenting that the abandonment of treaty limitations had led to naval expansion in other parts of the world, Walsh appealed for a bigger navy on the ground it was "out police department, our fire department, our protection and our life."

Nye called the program a "challenge" to other nations to increase their war fleets also.
Among the amendments approved by unanimous consent was one requiring all building to be done under terms of the Walsh-Healey Act which requires government contractors to conform to federal labor and wage regulation.

The senate also approved a committee amendment eliminating authorization for $3,000,000 for construction of a dirigible. Later, after Senator Duff (Dem., Wis.) and others suggested that the proposal should not be "too lightly" removed from the bill, the action was reconsidered on Walsh's motion. That left the question open, to be settled later.

The chief of the outlawed, Fascist-inclined organization was taken to the fortress immediately after a military court convicted him of a verbal attack against a member of the government, former Premier Nicholas Jorga.

He and his associates had been rounded up in a government drive against an alleged revolutionary plot. The charge against Codreanu was based on a letter he wrote to Jorga several months ago, assailing his policies.

In line with the drive against anti-government activities, the official Gazette announced a decree providing that all Roumanian subjects in foreign countries would lose their citizenship if engaged in or supporting propaganda against Roumania.

Belgium after a world survey, proposed an international pact under which democratic and authoritarian nations alike would collaborate to remove trade barriers, stabilize currencies, consolidate international debts and open up colonies.

There would be no attempt to "drag" the United States into European politics, it was said, but the French and British long have held that any attempt to rehabilitate world economy was impossible without American cooperation.

Daladier, whose prestige soared Tuesday morning when 90 per cent of the 160,000 striking French metal workers returned to work, told his associates that the chairman of decree laws he planned would have to wait while he and Bonnet worked on foreign affairs. Their first job was to complete a French-Italian agreement before the Spanish foreign minister, Julio Alvarez del Vayo, could use the League of Nations Council meeting May 8 as a sounding board for his accusations against Italy and possibly endanger the negotiations.

Quit in Order to Allow Governor to Reorganize Commission

LITTLE ROCK — Members of the executive, finance and publicity committees of the Arkansas Centennial Commission resigned Tuesday "in order to permit Governor Bailey to reorganize the commission as he sees fit."

Attending the final meeting of the committee members who have conducted affairs of the commission since it was created by Act 180 of 1935, at the War Memorial building were:

Harvey C. Couch, of Pine Bluff, chairman.

J. Gilbert Leight of Little Rock, vice chairman and chairman of the finance committee.

A. W. Parke of Little Rock, secretary.

R. E. Walt, of Little Rock, treasurer.

Dr. J. H. Reynolds of Conway.

Mrs. E. W. Frost of Texarkana.

J. J. Harrison of Little Rock, chairman of the publicity committee.

Col. T. H. Barton of Eldorado and F. W. Scott of Huttig, executive committee members, did not attend.

MIND Your MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. You meet a woman acquaintance on the street—should you touch her hat?
2. You work in an office with several women and occasionally eat lunch with one—should you feel that you must pay her check or be considered a light wad?
3. You are smoking a cigarette as you step on an elevator—should you part with it or go on smoking?
4. You are walking along a city street with a woman and feel the urge for a cigarette—should you light one and smoke it as you go along?
5. The woman says "No" when you suggest a second drink—should you insist that she have just one more?

What would you do if—
As you are dancing with a girl you notice that her slip is trailing below her dress—
(a) Tell her the news, without making it sound like a national calamity?
(b) Let her find it out for herself?
(c) Suggest sitting out the rest of the dance?

Answers
1. No. Lift it.
2. No. If she says "Let me pay my check"—let her.
3. Part with it.
4. No.
5. Let her be the judge.
Best "What Would You Do?" solution—(a). She'll thank you if you tell her, and mean it.

THEATERS

At the Saenger
In one respect Irene Dunne's role in "Joy of Living," new musical comedy, showing Thursday and Friday at the Saenger, is the easiest part she has ever portrayed on the screen.

That is because she impersonates a successful musical comedy actress in the picture—a character that mirrors her real life career. The incidents of the plot, of course, have no bearing on her life history.

The slender favorite starred on Broadway in such hits as "Irene" and "Show Boat," two of the most popular musical New York has ever known. As a consequence, it wasn't at all difficult for her to be realistic in the picture, in which Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., appears, a unique type of tuneful romantic adventure.

Alice Brady, Guy Kibbee, Jean Dixon, Eric Blore, Lucille Ball and Warren Hyman are in the cast of the Tay Garnett production for which Jerome Kern wrote the song hits.

Henry Ford Will Meet President

Motor Executive to Confer With His Official Opponent

DETROIT, Mich. — Henry Ford, a reliable source said Tuesday night, had accepted an invitation to discuss business conditions with President Roosevelt at the White House, April 27.

The understanding that Ford, the automobile manufacturer, had accepted an invitation from the president followed shortly after rumors of such an offer had been officially denied. Tuesday night however, a source close to Ford activities confirmed that the industrialist, who often has been at odds with government policies and New Deal measures, would meet with Mr. Roosevelt Wednesday.

Ford was reported to have accepted an invitation proffered through G. Hall Roosevelt, brother of the president's wife and former Detroit city comptroller. G. Hall Roosevelt met with both Henry Ford and Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company. Tuesday, Roosevelt was said to have relayed the acceptance to the White House.

Early Tuesday Ford left his suburban Dearborn home to accompany Mrs. Ford to convention of the National Woman's Farm and Garden Association in Boston. From Boston he will go to Washington, where he will be guest of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, which is meeting there.

STORIES IN STAMPS

SECOND PRESIDENT ON U.S. STAMP

If the likeness of George Washington was altogether fitting to follow that of Franklin on the first American postage stamps, that of Thomas Jefferson is no less well chosen.

Far by 1851, when the first full series of U. S. postage was issued, history had already placed Thomas Jefferson in imperishable perspective. He had drafted the Declaration of Independence, served in the Continental Congress, revised the statutes of Virginia, served as minister to France, secretary of state under Washington, was twice elected President, founded the University of Virginia, and had negotiated the Louisiana Purchase.

When he died July 4, 1826, 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, he went secure in his stature as the most conspicuous of American apostles of democracy and one of the greatest liberals of modern times. Aside from Washington, he was the only President on the 1851 series. The five-cent stamp, brown, showing Jefferson after a painting by Stuart, is reproduced below, one and one-half times actual size. ## Braxton in Form, Little Rock Wins

Travelers Defeat Barons for Fourth Straight Victory

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Garland Braxton Little Rock left-handed, spoiled opening day ceremonies for the Birmingham Barons Tuesday when he belted them to five hits and won a 5-2 victory before 7222 fans.

Braxton's chances for a shutout were spoiled in the sixth inning when Graham and Deal allowed Fresno Thompson's fly to fall for a double. Clancy and Thompson scored subsequently on infield outs, but that was the only Birmingham threat.

Crax Tramples Vols
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Scoring five runs in the final two innings, the Atlanta Crackers trampled Nashville Tuesday, 9 to 6, before 8000 spectators in the Vols' initial home appearance of the Southern Association season.

Emil Muth's eighth inning home run, scoring Marshall Mauldin ahead of him, broke a 4-4 deadlock. The visitors followed in the next frame with a three-run squirt which tied the game. Atlanta 000 211 023—9 12 4

New Orleans Wins
NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The New Orleans Pelicans, after three defeats on the road, opened their season at home Tuesday with a wild 5-run rally in the eighth that squashed the Memphis Chickasaws, 7 to 2.

Pelican Park officials said the attendance was 26,261, bettering by 5226 the Pelicans' record-breaking opener of last year and topping the old mark of 24,639 set by Chattanooga in 1936.

Tied at 2-2 in the eighth inning by a one-run Memphis sport, the Pelicans came back with four doubles and a single to put the game on ice.

Giants Show Much Power in Winning

Flatten Boston Bees, 13 to 1, in Opening Day Game

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Giants, exploiting new-found power as well as all-around efficiency, opened fire Tuesday in defense of the National League baseball championship with a blast that flattened the Boston Bees, 13 to 1, for the benefit of a jubilant opening day crowd of 29,712 spectators.

Rapidly Improving Lawrin Rates Favorable Comment

Lawrin, Jockey L. Haas up.

By MAX RIDDLE
NEA Service Staff Writer

Lawrin is an already highly tried 3-year-old candidate for the Kentucky Derby, May 7. Winner of the Hialeah Stakes and the Flamingo, Lawrin has been temporarily overshadowed in the fanfare of enthusiasm over Stagehand, but his racing record stands on itself.

Lawrin is a brown son of Inco, the great Sir Gallahad III speedster of some years ago, from the mare Margaret Lawrence, by Vulcan. He was raced 15 times last year, won three, and was second in six others. His wasn't a particularly impressive record, but in his last start of the year, at Tropical Park, he won by four lengths, and served notice that he was improving.

To some extent, the careers of Lawrin and Stagehand parallel each other. Lawrin, of course, won three races last year, while Stagehand failed to win at all. However, they started the new year by showing that they had improved enough to beat older horses, and both have gone far up the ladder since then.

Balkers Fear Indisposition
Lawrin has not been a particularly consistent horse and this fact casts doubt on his chances in the Kentucky Derby. A few weeks before the Flamingo, he was thought to have that race at his mercy just as certainly as Brevity had had two years before. Then he stumped his backers by running the Boston without serious opposition, while Lanky Cliff Melton took nearly all the sting out of the Bees' attack. The sophomore southpaw lost a shutout when Vince DiMaggio, brother of the Yankees' holdout, belted a home run into the upper deck in the seventh.

The Giants fell upon bespectacled Danny MacFayden with such ferocity that he yielded four runs and failed to last the first inning. Dick Bartell started the fireworks with a homer into the left-field stands. Mel Ott's three-run homer, in the second, helped roll up the count at the expense of Bill Wein, young southpaw. John Lanning, third and last Boston Dinger, was the victim of a four-run rally in the eighth, aided by DiMaggio's two-base miff of Ott's high fly.

Rare Rightsider

Sweaters Given Prescott Cagers

Both Boys and Girls Receive Maroon and White Sweaters

PRESCOTT, Ark.—Sweaters were awarded members of the Prescott high school boys' and girls' basketball teams recently.

The girls' sweaters are maroon and white with script letters, equipped with a zipper front and a half belt sport back. The only difference between the girls' and boys' sweaters is that the letting on the boys' is the full block type.

Those receiving the awards were: Girls—Mary Joe Hamilton, Orba Lee Reeves, Catherine Hesterly, Opal McGee, Ruth Elizabeth Seall, Joan Drescher, Lois McDonald, Florine Grinnett, Laurie Yarbrough and Maud McDaniel.

Boys—Jack Simpson, Gene Lee, Stanton Bewert, J. C. Stuart, Dick Williamson, Henry Grinnett, James DeWoody, Walter Marsh, Mayne Eley and L. B. Melton.

The boys and girls also surprised Coach Story and Mrs. Dale Dorman with gifts of sweaters.

The Payoff

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service

NEW YORK.—Nobody can tell Al Schacht that young Bob Feller is as fast as Walter Johnson, or that Lefty Grove or anybody else ever threw a baseball with the speed of the Big Train.

Schacht spent years with Johnson in Washington, where he pitched and coached. Al is vastly more than a clown in this baseball business. He was a fair sort of a right-hander himself. He sold peanuts at the Polo Grounds 30 years ago. He's seen every world series but five since 1911. He saw Grover Cleveland Alexander, Christy Mathewson, Jack Pfeister, Mordecai Brown and Ed Walsh.

Schacht saw the Chicago Cubs beat the New York Giants in the famous playoff game of 1908. He saw Frank Chance bluff John McGraw into letting the Cubs have batting practice. He saw Johnny Kling catching foul flies in a shower of bottles and cushions.

Yes, Al Schacht has seen a few ball players, but insists that he has seen only one Walter Johnson.

"And that's all there'll ever be," says Al. "He was the greatest pitcher of them all."

"Walter Johnson was more than that. He was the sweetest guy—you can't describe him any other way—who ever came up. He came into the American League a big, friendly, honest, brave farmer. He was that for 20 years. He is still that."

"I'll never forget the world series of 1925. That last day, when it rained, Johnson was the only pitcher Washington had. I can see him there now, the rain streaking down his face. He put seaweed in his cap so he'd have something dry to wipe his hands on. The seaweed trickled down with the rain. It stuck in his hair below his cap and hung on his eyebrows."

"Walter was old and tired. He didn't have a thing but heart. We taped both his legs to help him stand in the mud. But he knew we had no other pitcher, so he stayed there, waiting for the best he could. The man really had courage."

"Roger Peckinpaugh, playing shortstop, was booing them. Poor Peck! His legs were gone, too. But Johnson didn't complain. He didn't say a word."

A RING—BUT NOT FROM RUPPERT

Joe DiMaggio, New York Yankees' star outfielder, and the season's number one holdout, stretches lazily as a clamoring alarm clock, set for 7 a. m., starts him on another day in San Francisco. The young Italian batting star seems quite unperturbed over the fact that he and Col. Jacob Ruppert have been unable to get together on salary differences. Even though this makes the third straight season that DiMag' has not appeared on opening day with the Broadway Bombers.

nothing more. He was throwing just off in his last start. In the 10th, someone tripped with one out. A fly ball for the world championship! But Johnson struck out Irish Meusel and George Kelly. In the 12th, another triple, Frank Frisch, Schacht believes it was, and again Barney struck out the next two.

The ball struck a pebble and hopped over Freddie Lindstrom's head right after that, and Muddy Ruel scored the winning run for the Senators.

That was a break, but as Schacht points out, a guy like Walter Johnson had a break coming.

Red Sox, Yankees Split Twin Bill

World Champions Take First Game—Shutout in Second Contest

BOSTON (AP)—The world champion New York Yankees, although gaining a split in the Patriot's Day twin bill with the Red Sox, were humbled no end Tuesday by dropping a two-hit, six to nothing shutout in the second game after speaking through to a five to three decision in the first.

The combined pitching of Jackie Wilson and Southpaw Fritz Ostermuller turned the trick in the afternoon engagement, blanking every batsman except Rookie Flash Gordon, who doubled in the third off Wilson, and Frankie Crosetti, who singled in the eighth off Fritz.

A crowd of 35,000 turned out for the afternoon encounter, which was featured by the Red Sox four-run spurge in the sixth frame.

Three of those tallies were accounted for by Bobby Doerr's homer with two out and two on.

In the morning game, played before a 10,000 crowd, the Sox finally solved Lefty Gomez in the eighth inning and went ahead three to two with a two-run rally. But young Charley Wagner walked two batters to open the ninth, and after Johnny Marston relieved him, Billy Knickerbocker was purposely passed, loading the bases. At this point, Red Ruffing was called on to pinch-hit for Gomez and lined a single into right center for two runs and the ball game.

Schacht Best Paid
BOSTON (AP)—Eliminating the managers, Al Schacht will make more money out of baseball this season than anyone else actively connected with the game. Lou Gehrig of the Yankees makes top salary with his $39,000, but Schacht likely will make more on his tour as a comedian.

One Distinction

LEESBURG, Fla. (AP)—The Leesburg baseball club of the Florida State league has at least one distinction: It's perhaps the only club that plays its games on a field laid out on an island pumped up out of a lake. The House of David team also trained on this field last spring.

Vermont's Governor Flays 'Impractical' New Deal and 'Reactionary' G. O. P.

By PAUL ROSS
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
MONTPELIER, Vt.—The clocks struck one. A grey-haired man of middling height entered the Governor's office through the door used by the clerical force. His suit was baggy, his tie awry, his shoes needed a shine. He hung up his plain grey hat and rough-textured, worn overcoat and looked at the reporter-up-from-New York.

"Hello," he said, with the smiling off-handedness of a man greeting an old neighbor.

"Hello. Are you Governor Aiken?" "Yes," answered the grey-haired man. "Drop into my office."

This was George D. Aiken, Governor of Vermont, whom many regard as a presidential possibility for 1940.

Last December, Governor Aiken, a Republican, sent a letter to the Republican National Committee. "Our citizens," he wrote, "see no hope in a party offering no constructive policy or program. Purge the party . . . of its reactionary and unfair elements . . . or . . . we must look elsewhere for an organization . . ."

More recently, he delivered an address in New York at a Lincoln-Day dinner adorned by important leaders of the Republican party. "The greatest praise I can give to Lincoln," said the Vermontor, "on this anniversary is to say that he would be ashamed of his party's leadership today."

When a Republican—especially the Governor of VERMONT—bites the Republican party . . . it's news. Editors cut black headlines over his words. Columnists look his measure as a new political force. In Washington, a Senator proposed him for the next President of the United States.

"Governor Aiken, you know you're a national figure now, don't you?" the writer said, when we were seated in the Governor's office.

Aiken smiled across the desk and shoved a pencil under the cat-piece of his glasses, country-store clerk fashion.

"Well," he drawled, "it just shows what the state of affairs is in the Republican party when a little outspoken criticism gets all that attention."

During an hour's conversation, his views begin to sound like a middle-class catechism.

"The majority of the people don't distrust Roosevelt's sincerity or disagree with his social aims. But they do want to call a halt to consolidate

Corn and Legume

The practice of interplanting corn with a legume is one of the best ways of building up the fertility of the soil and of replacing organic matter that has been lost during many years of cultivation.

Research work by the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture has shown that the advantages of interplanting legumes are influenced chiefly by the time and the way the legumes are planted, rainfall, and soil condition, according to Charles F. Simmons, extension agronomist.

Most farmers, Mr. Simmons said, prefer to plant in the safe row at the same time the corn is planted or planted in the middle up to laying-by time. When the legumes are planted early, the corn yields are usually smaller, because the legumes will compete with corn for moisture and plant food. However, early-planted legumes will make more growth and have more effect on following crops than late-planted legumes. On thin soil, it has been found best to plant the corn in 6-foot rows with the legumes planted at the same time in the middle.

Since cowpeas or soybeans may be pastured to livestock after the corn is gathered, their value for feed will more than offset the smaller corn yields, Mr. Simmons said.

Many farmers report cotton yields following corn and soybeans to be 20 to 30 per cent more than cotton following corn alone.

Army Worms

The appearance of army worms in Arkansas county out fields on April 13 makes it necessary for Hempstead county farmers to keep a sharp lookout for these worms in their fields and report their first appearance to the county agent's office.

Last year army worms caused widespread damage in eastern and northwestern Arkansas counties, the damage in Arkansas county alone having been estimated at more than one million dollars.

The worms found in Arkansas county were still small and had most of their growth to make yet. This indicated that the worms had not then reached their period of greatest destructiveness, according to Dwight H. Isely, entomologist, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

The abundance of army worms has been favored by an early spring. Mr. Isely said, which has been warm enough for their development, but cool enough to check the development of their natural enemies. It is quite possible, he warned, that this outbreak is more widespread over the state than the information from Arkansas county indicates.

The control of army worms by the use of poison bait was effective last year, Mr. Isely said. The bait formula is as follows: Bran, 25 pounds, white arsenic or Paris green, one pound; molasses, one-half gallon; water to wet. Usually 2 to 3 gallons of water are required. The bait and poison should be mixed dry. The molasses should be dissolved in a small amount of water and added to the poison mixture. More water can be added as needed. The bait mixture should be a crumbly mass, but should not be sloppy.

Usually bait should be scattered wherever worms are observed late in the afternoon, since the worms feed by preference at night. During cloudy weather they may feed throughout the day. About 10 pounds of bait to the acre are required.

1937 Work Sheets

Farmers who have not filed 1937 work sheets must do so not later than April 30, 1938, in order to be eligible for payments under the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program. Clifford L. Smith, county agent, has been informed.

In order to compute cotton acreage allotments under the 1938 program accurately, work sheets have been made out on forms which did not participate in the 1937 program. These sheets, if they were not signed by the farmers, must be signed not later than April 30 if the farmers are to be eligible for payment this year, Mr. Smith explained.

Farmers who signed work sheets under the 1937 program will not be required to file another work sheet this year.

There are approximately 250 work sheets that have not been signed to date.

"Sir Baronet" Is a Sticker for His Title

YATTENDON, Eng. (AP)—The only baronet in Britain who insists on always being addressed as "Sir Baronet" explained why recently.

"It's because he's a 'die-hard'." Nobody questions his right. As he says, a baronetcy is fifth in the noble order and all baronets have a right to be addressed as "Sir Baronet" just as peers have the right to be called "My Lord."

But lately except Sir Spencer Fockington, Baron Maryon-Wilson, lord of the manors of Charlton and Hampstead clings to the old form.

All his servants address him as "Sir Baronet" but call him "the baronet" out of earshot.

"I'm a die-hard," says Sir Spencer. "I've seen letters addressed to my father as 'gamekeeper,' yes, even my old man, addressing them as 'Dear Sir.' Now, why the devil should any baronet be addressed in the same way?"

West Point 'Goat' Get the Applause

Representative Terry Proposes Change in Graduation Exercises

BY PRESTON GLOVER
WASHINGTON — West Point graduates receive their certificates in order of class standing. The brightest gets his first; the tail-end is called the "goat" and gets all the applause. The system, a practice of years beyond counting, recently inspired Representative Terry of Arkansas to propose to the House appropriations committee that it was a "cruel and unnecessary" thing to brand a poor army officer for life as the "goat" of his class.

He demanded that General Benedict, West Point commandant, look into the matter of giving out the certificates in alphabetical order, from Adams to Zagurski. General Benedict said he would. But from the ranks of those most concerned in the matter comes a counter protest suggesting that Representative Terry tend to his law making and stop worrying about West Point.

Why Senator?

"Now I ask you," writes Louis Dosh, a West Point senior, in a letter published in his father's newspaper at Ocala, Fla. "Isn't that something to pay a man $10,000 a year (Mr. Terry's salary) to worry himself about?"

The letter goes on to say that General Benedict, as he promised frequently, "one of whom would inevitably be the 'goat' and have to suffer this great humiliation and excessive opinions cheering on graduation, to find their

"Of the thirty, two favored alphabetical graduation. One of the two was the alphabetical senior, and he voted that way just to get the laugh he knew it would provoke among his classmates."

"I think it ridiculous that outsiders who know next to nothing about this institution should be permitted to dictate changes in our traditions. Out-siders just can't understand the position of the goat, or the goats in general. The goats are the most popular men in the class and the wooden nature of their mental faculties is one of the most prolific sources of humor for them and their classmates."

"To take away the one glory that they may achieve before graduation—unheard of!"

Louis cautioned his father that his information came from hearsay and might be defective but he didn't leave any doubt about his convictions on the subject. He won't have West Point Terrified.

They Call It Peace

From our own library of aimless knowledge, forty-three state primaries are scheduled for this spring and summer. A marble monument at head of Pennsylvania avenue erected in memory of the officers, seamen, and marines of the United States Navy who fell in defense of the union and liberty of their country in 1861-65 is called the "peace monument". We do not know why Mrs. Roosevelt dashes about Washington driving her own car and the Secret Service, whose duty it is to protect the President and his family, has about given up trying to follow her. It is a mile and a half from the White House to the Capitol. It is ever so much farther from the Capitol to the White House.

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Fearless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.
